District Seeks Applications for Sponsors of the Summer DC Youth Meals Program

The District of Columbia Office of the State Superintendent of Education (OSSE) announces the availability of federal funds to assist sponsors and meal sites participating in the US Department of Agriculture (USDA) Summer Food Service Program (SFSP). Locally known as the DC Youth Meals Program, the SFSP provides DC youth with no-cost meals during the summer break. Qualifying organizations may apply to serve as sponsors of the SFSP through June 15.

The DC Youth Meals Program is designed to provide youth age 18 and younger no cost nutritious meals and snacks during the summer months. Our mission is to work diligently and purposefully to increase program utilization, visibility and sustainability, through the strengthening of our partnerships and by continuing to play an integral role in the advancement of DC youth.

The program runs through August 2024. Meal sites are conveniently located at hundreds of locations across the city. Meal site operation dates, days, and times vary by location. Any child can receive a meal, no questions asked.

Eligible sponsors, and or sites, must be 501c3 tax exempt organizations, such as public, and private nonprofit community-based organizations, school food authorities, faith-based organizations, housing authorities and units of local and federal government. Public or private nonprofit, day or overnight summer camps may participate as well. A for-profit organization may not apply as a sponsor in the program but may be eligible to participate as a site. All participants in this program are served meals free of charge and are protected under the federal and the District of Columbia protected classes.
