Call to Order and President's Opening Remarks

President Ono called the meeting to order. He said, “We’ve had a fantastic start to this new year, one that began with our football team bringing home the National Championship! It was an incredible season – our third successive victory over that School Down South; our third consecutive Big Ten Championship; an overtime win against Alabama in the Rose Bowl; and a victory against the University of Washington to cap our undefeated season – with a record of 15-0.

“I congratulate our student-athletes, our coaches and our team, for not only their victories, but also the incredible character they displayed in bringing home the National Championship. I’d also like to thank Warde Manuel for his superlative leadership of our Athletics Department, and to congratulate him for being named chairman of the College Football Playoff selection committee next season. In addition, I’d like to welcome our new head football coach Sherrone Moore – we are looking forward to cheering on our Wolverines in the new season.

“On Tuesday, UM was ranked as the third best public university, and 18th overall, according to the Times Higher Education’s 2023 world reputation ranks.

“At UM, we also have one of the greatest marching bands, and music and arts programs, in the country. That’s why I’m so pleased to welcome Jason Fettig, our new Director of Bands to our family. Jason formerly led The President’s Own United States Marine Band and Chamber Orchestra, and at his first concert with the UM Symphony Band earlier this month, they performed a composition jointly commissioned by UM and the President’s Own.

“Earlier this month I had the opportunity to visit the UM-Shanghai Jiao Tong University Joint Institute, a visit that exceeded my expectations by at least an order of magnitude. I’m looking forward to furthering our engagement with the Joint Institute to foster academic excellence, innovation and entrepreneurship, and leadership development.

“In January, our Automotive Research Center (ARC) reached a new, five-year agreement with the U.S. Army for up to $100M for work on autonomous vehicle technologies. This potentially doubles the federal government’s investment with the ARC and opens the way for cutting-edge technologies useful for military needs as well as emergency response and disaster relief.

“Concurrently, our Bold Challenges Initiative, which was established to catalyze large-scale, interdisciplinary research that changes the world, has launched five new themes on topics ranging from advancing human health to creating sustainable energy innovations.

“I’m also pleased to note that our Innovation Partnerships Office was recently awarded significant funding from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation to establish the Michigan University Innovation Capital Fund and the Michigan University Innovation Capital Consortium. This new fund will solidify UM’s research commercialization ecosystem through a collaborative partnership among universities across the state, and accelerate economic growth and development throughout Michigan.”

“With that in mind, we are continuing to expand our efforts in Generative AI. Specifically, through our world-class faculty and the Center for Academic Innovation, we are developing more than 35 short online courses on generative AI which will empower learners to build essential new skills and advance their careers. Most of those courses will launch in July.”

Presentation: Provost McCauley introduced Professor Gabriel M. Ehrlich, an economic forecaster and director of the University’s Research Seminar in Quantitative Economics (RSQE). The RSQE has the distinction of being the longest-running economic forecasting group in the nation, operating continuously since 1952.

Professor Ehrlich said that RSQE's forecasting partners include the state of Michigan, City of Detroit, the Michigan Department of Transportation, and the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. He offered an analogy for RSQE that it does work for Michigan and its communities similar to the Congressional budget office and the U.S. Congress.

Committee Reports.

Finance, Audit and Investment Committee Regent Hubbard reported that the FAI Committee, including co-chair Regent Weiser, and members White and Brown, met on February 14 for a discussion and review of internal audits.

UM is the last R1 university with a stand-alone undergrad to Ph.D. Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering department in the country.

“We were hosted at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg Center, the latest in a growing list of higher education institutions expanding their presence in D.C., and the Canadian Embassy where we discussed the Canada-US partnership, forged by shared geography, similar values, common interests, strong personal connections and powerful, multi-layered economic ties.

“We met with leadership from the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Engineering, and the American Association of Universities to discuss how UM Research can serve the nation.

“We had conversations with members of our congressional delegation, had a tour of the Capitol, and met with the White House American Rescue Plan Coordinator and Senior Advisor to the President. We also fit in a few important matters of university business including preliminary budgets for the coming year.

“We would like to thank our Federal Relations Office in Washington DC, for their assistance in making contacts and arrangements for what proved to be an exceptional few days.”

Today I would like to extend our support to our faculty who through upholding these principles may incur threats or harassment.

“At UM, we firmly uphold the principles that empower our faculty to freely conduct research, express their ideas, challenge prevailing notions, and engage in robust discourse without reprisal. In the performance of their academic duties, our faculty may incur criticism, from within the university community or outside it. This is intrinsic to all academic vocations. We recognize there is a crucial difference between robust, civil disagreement with a person's ideas and harassment designed to make an individual feel unsafe or interfere with their ability to teach and conduct research.

“In addition to the harm that threats and harassment cause our faculty as individuals, such behavior, often deliberately, has the potential to compromise our academic mission. UM is committed to offering the breadth of its resources and support to faculty experiencing threats and/or harassment. We are launching a new web page that pulls together existing resources and guidance for individuals who find themselves in this situation. Additional resources will be added in the coming weeks. We are also working to establish a coordinated response approach to connect individuals with support through a single point of contact.

“This spring, we will launch a survey of faculty as part of a larger effort to better understand the scope and occurrence of harassment, threats and intimidation aimed at faculty as a result of their research or academic work. The survey will be developed and administered in partnership with UM's Institute for Social Research.

“While we wish there was not a need for these measures, the University stands with our faculty and supports our colleagues in addressing such trying circumstances.”

Building Name Change - Engineering Lab Building, UM-Dearborn Campus,

Chancellor Grasso spoke of Tony England, dean emeritus of College of Engineering and Computer Science, UM-Dearborn, who instituted a holistic practice based engineering curriculum. He helped transform the lives of engineering students, and influenced the design and construction of our Engineering Lab Building.

Chancellor Grasso said, “Tony was one of the original Apollo astronauts who helped to save the Apollo 13 crew from disaster. This key moment in space history was featured in Ron Howard's movie starring Tom Hanks. Tony was in the control room when the astronauts radioed what has now entered the lexicon of American colloquialism, ‘Houston, we have a problem.’ Tony along with other engineers scrambled to design canisters that scrubbed carbon dioxide from the capsule atmosphere helping the astronauts safely back to earth.”
