V. FINDINGS

16. In reviewing the issues raised, the Commission based its findings on information provided by the Applicant, the NCBs concerned and INTERPOL’s General Secretariat.
17. The Commission treats the Applicant’s contentions in the order in which they are described in paragraph 10 above. ...

A. Irregularities of the proceedings

a) The Applicant

18. The Applicant explains that the criminal investigation against him was opened in ... based on a fabricated charge and ..., the investigator obtained a permission of the court for his arrest. This judicial decision was issued on ... and was valid for ... months.
19. On ..., decision of the country A’s court dismissed the Prosecutor’s request of country A to issue a new permission to detain as the Prosecutor failed to demonstrate that the Applicant was hiding ..., especially in view of the fact that there was a statement from the Applicant where he indicated his place of residence and sought to be questioned via video conference.
20. The Applicant adds that despite the ... decision of the country A’s courts, the NCB of country A sent a diffusion for his arrest via INTERPOL’s channels based on the initial judicial decision allowing his arrest. In proof of this, he provided a copy of the diffusion sent on ... by the NCB of country A for his arrest in view of extradition, based on above-mentioned judicial decision.
21. Moreover, the Applicant argues that the judicial decision forming the basis for the diffusion was not an arrest warrant. Indeed, according to him that there are no valid decisions of country A’s courts to allow his arrest or detention. He supported his contention by citing a court decision He also provided the copy of a decision of country A’s courts ... which acknowledged that the Applicant is located and stated his address, to which the notification of suspicion should have been sent.
22. Finally, the Applicant claims that he informed country A’s authorities of his location and willingness to be interrogated in country B via video conference. However, country A’s authorities have refused to engage.

b) The NCB of country A (NCB source of the data)

23. In its reply, the NCB of country A first advised the Commission that the decision ... to issue a permission for the detention of the Applicant was based on a lack of reason given by the investigator to issue such an order. However, since then, in view of new elements provided, the investigative judge of the country A’s court satisfied the motion of the investigator to select a measure of restrain in form of custody against the Applicant. In addition, the court of appeal of country A left the decision unchanged.
24. In response to the Applicant’s claim concerning his request to be interviewed by country A’s authorities, the NCB of country A stated that according to the country A’s Criminal Procedure Code, the interrogation of persons during ... investigation may be conducted by video-conference where certain persons are unable to directly participate in pre-trial proceedings because of their state of health or for other valid reasons. The NCB explained that in this case, interviewing the Applicant in country B via video conference was not justified, as his interrogation during pre-trial investigation should be conducted at the place of criminal proceeding of the criminal case, with the possibility of making other investigation actions.
25. In addition, the Applicant’s request to conduct an interview via video-conference was denied by the investigating judge, as evasion from the pre-trial investigation is not a valid reason, and the fact that the Applicant is evading pre-trial investigation was confirmed by trial court and court of appeal.

26. The NCB added that they had requested the extradition of the Applicant from Germany.

c) The NCB of country B

27. The NCB of country B located the Applicant in the capital of country B after having received the diffusion from the NCB of country A. He was arrested on ..., released on ... on bail, and had to fulfil weekly obligations.

28. ... in country B received the extradition documents and as of ..., a final decision had not been taken.

d) Findings of the Commission

29. Under Articles 3(1)(a) and 33(3) of the Statute of the Commission, the function of the Commission is to review whether the processing of data in INTERPOL's files meets INTERPOL's applicable legal requirements, in accordance with Article 36 of INTERPOL's Constitution.

30. The Commission recalled that it is not its role to assess a country's law enforcement or judicial system in abstracto and that it must make its determinations based on specific information that sheds light on whether or not INTERPOL's legal framework has been complied with in a particular case.

31. Here, it is not contested that on ..., the Applicant was requested to appear on ... at the Prosecutor's office However, on ..., he confirmed having received the notice and informed the Prosecutor's Office that he would not appear on the requested date. On ..., the notification of suspicion dated ... was sent by email to the Applicant.

32. The Commission highlighted that the Applicant was added to the international wanted list in country A based on a letter of the Head police station, dated ..., and on a Certificate of the Center of

33. Then, the Commission established from the judicial decision of ..., which forms the basis of the diffusion, that the Applicant's defence lawyer was present during the hearing. The lawyer had the possibility of presenting his arguments, and in particular that the Applicant was not hiding from pre-trial investigation he has been residing in country B officially since ... and had offered to be interrogated via video conference. The procedure followed at national level by the country A's authorities in charge of the investigation were detailed in the said decision. Finally, the investigative judge approved the ... custody without a time limit, and without the pre-requirement of processing of data through INTERPOL's channels.

34. Furthermore, from the decision ... of the country A's court, provided by the Applicant, the Commission also noted that the Applicant's lawyer had been present during the hearing and had the possibility of presenting his arguments. In this decision, the investigative judge provided that the decision of... "was legally valid and not subject to reversal". The Decision the Courts of ... in respect of the Applicant, while acknowledging his place of residence also left the order of ... unchanged.

35. In order to respect the spirit of the UDHR while at the same time respecting the role of the Commission, the simple assertion of possible procedural irregularities cannot rise to the level of an Article 2 violation. In this case, the Commission finds that the elements provided by the NCB are sufficient to indicate the validity of the suits, and that it has no reason to refute that the prosecution is potentially valid. Thus, the Commission finds that the information provided by the Applicant does not demonstrate the likelihood that a flagrant denial of justice took place, and it concludes that the processing of the data concerning the Applicant is compliant with Article 2 of INTERPOL's Constitution.

36. The Commission also noted that the location of the Applicant is known to country A's authorities. It recalled that, here, the purpose of the diffusion is not only to locate the Applicant, but also to request his provisional arrest in view of extradition. Therefore, the fact that the Applicant's location is known to country A's authorities does not undermine as such the lawfulness of the diffusion.

37. However, INTERPOL's rules require that the requesting NCB takes appropriate step to achieve the purpose for which the diffusion was sent, i.e. to seek the arrest in view of extradition of the individual concerned, or provides reasonable grounds for the lack of action of its country.

38. In this regard, the information provided by the NCB of country A, which was confirmed by the NCB of country B, highlight that the authorities in country A have taken steps to respect their obligations under applicable law, and to request the extradition or surrender of the Applicant from country B, if possible.

39. In conclusion, the Commission recalled that INTERPOL General Assembly resolution AGN/53/RES/7 of 1984 states that “if certain countries refuse extradition, this is reported to the other NCBs in an addendum to the original notice”. It held that this Resolution applies to the present case, and that should country B’s authorities deny extradition of the Applicant to country A, it is reported in INTERPOL’s files.

B. Political character of the proceedings

a) The Applicant

40. The Applicant claims that the proceedings initiated against him are politically motivated, as he was part of the opposition party of Mr. Y and elected as As such, he repeatedly reported on corruption of local officials. In ..., he received threats to his life and thus left the country for country B where he resides.
41. The Applicant claims that the charges against him were fabricated in order to stop his ... activities.

b) The NCB of country A

42. The judicial decision dated ..., sent by the NCB of country A, provides details on the acts the Applicant is accused of, while he was Head of a company.
43. These acts, which are detailed in the summary of facts of the diffusion, include abusing his official position by ...

c) Findings of the Commission

44. With respect to the assertion that the matter is of a political character, the Organization applies the predominance test, i.e., it evaluates all relevant information and pertinent elements, as provided for by the rules, to determine whether the offense is of a predominantly political character.
45. The rule reflected in RPD Article 34(3) requires analysis of all relevant factors, as to which the following appear to the Commission to be key in the present case:
- the nature of the offense, namely the charges and underlying facts;
 - the status of the person concerned; and
 - the general context of the case.
46. In reviewing the applicable criteria under the predominance test, the Commission established that here, the offense as described is of a common law character in which NCB of country A has set forth sufficient elements concerning the possible effective participation of the Applicant.
47. The Commission considered that the Applicant was elected as ... in He was a member of the opposition party of Mr Y and
48. However, the Commissions also highlighted that the acts the Applicant is accused of were not committed in his capacity of elected but in that of Head of the company “...”. In addition, the elements provided by the NCB of country A highlight the possible abuse of the Applicant’s position as Head of the company to obtain personal gain, as well as the existence of concrete elements characterizing the personal benefits for the Applicant of the facts concerned.
49. Accordingly, the information provided by the Applicant is not sufficient to establish that political elements are predominant over the ordinary criminal law elements of the case, and that the processing of the data concerning the Applicant is contrary to Article 3 of the Constitution.

FOR THESE REASONS, THE COMMISSION

1. Decides that the data challenged are compliant with INTERPOL's rules applicable to the processing of personal data, subject to the following update of the Applicant's file:
2. Decides that should country B's authorities deny extradition of the Applicant to country A, it is reported in INTERPOL's files.
